Fantastic way of becoming comfortable and confident avec "la belle langue".

This style of conversational French is effortless in the company of Jonathan's easygoing approach. Every conversational hour improves vocabulary, tunes the ear to native French diction and frankly is extremely enjoyable and great value.

Allez . reservez vos places immediatement. Bon courage!

Super engagement, went at my own pace while also pushing me on my ability. Really enjoyed these sessions and get results and built confidence.

French Grinds Academy was established in Greystones in 2018 and has been teaching French to all their young students (Junior cycle and Leaving certs). The owner Jonathan Carcone is currently working with students from Temple Carrig, St David's and Greystones Community College.

He has achieved great results with his current students – so much so, that they are all coming back this year!

Originally from Paris, Jonathan has worked for both the French Embassy and Alliance Française in Dublin.

“Every student is different and the requirements are different for everyone. Therefore we offer a free assessment for you to identify your specific requirements. The grind is tailored towards your specific needs. You could be a total beginner or a perfectionist we

THE 30 MINUTES CONCEPT :

MICRO LEARNING

In an ideal world, students would step into the classroom with laser-like focus, absorbing hours of information without pause. Take a peek into a college lecture hall and you'll get a much more realistic picture; amongst the students taking notes and listening intently, you're guaranteed to find a few dozing off, checking their phones, or zoning out. Despite the appearance of laziness, a wavering attention span is associated less with attitude and more with course duration. Long courses routinely deliver poorer learning outcomes than shorter courses, but why? It all comes down to science.

Lengthy Courses Fight Psychology... and Lose

As it turns out, a lack of discipline or motivation is not to blame for a short attention span. According to most studies, the average adult has a maximum attention span of about 25/30 minutes. While individuals can choose to re-focus their attention on the same activity repeatedly, it's normal for lapses in attention to occur.

In one study, students self-reported lapses in attention, describing the duration of lapses and documenting their frequency. While it's possible students' desire to perform well in the study influenced them to underestimate the length of each lapse, a clear pattern emerged. Students experienced lapses in attention up to 5 minutes in length, but shorter lapses were the most common. Lapses increased in frequency and duration as the course went on, clearly indicating that course length influenced overall focus levels.

This study and others like it demonstrate what educators have known for years: even the best of students have a limited attention span, and for the best learning outcomes we must learn to work with it.
