Introduction

Kenmare Resources plc. is an Irish incorporated mining company with its head office located in Dublin. The company is a member of the FTSE All-Share Index and has a premium listing on the London Stock Exchange (Ticker: KMR) and a secondary listing on the Irish Stock Exchange (Ticker: JEV).

The principal activity of the Group is the operation of the Moma Titanium Minerals Mine, which is located on the northeast coast of Mozambique and has been in commercial operation since 2009.

Kenmare is recognized as a major supplier of mineral sand products to a global customer base operating in over 15 countries and including some of the largest end users of these products. The output from the Mine operation consists of several grades of the titanium dioxide (TiO₂) minerals, ilmenite and rutile, as well as the zirconium mineral, zircon. Kenmare's products are key raw materials processed into intermediate products and ultimately consumed in everyday 'quality-of-life' products such as paints, plastics and ceramic tiles.
