Social Enterprise

What is Social Enterprise?

Social enterprise can be challenging to define and increasingly blurs the lines of the for-profit and non-profit sectors. The concept has been evolving rapidly in recent years.

The background of the slide features a close-up of a book cover. The cover is dark blue or purple with a fine, pebbled texture. Embossed in a lighter color are the Chinese characters '聖經' (Holy Bible) in a traditional serif font. To the left, a portion of a book's endpaper is visible, showing a decorative floral pattern in blue and white. A small, light-colored tag is tucked into the book's spine. In the top left corner, there is a decorative graphic consisting of a grid of white dots.

The words from the Priest of The Spring Church

You can squat down to talk to him

Not for the reason to help him, but for he is also a human being, and you want to talk to him.

“The number of beggars is up to you, not me.”

So respond to the emperor, in the Movie 《King of Beggars》

Is it their own fault when people end up on the streets?

憐憫與無情

露宿者從香港深水埗走到台灣艋舺，記者金其琪和攝影師雷日昇記錄了兩地的日與夜，以及蒼天底下的悲哀、無奈、掙扎和改變。

金其琪訪問完寫的後記，再三閱讀，愈覺悲涼。她引述邵家臻去年曾在一個場合問台下來自日本、台灣和韓國的社工：「香港已經用了影像、立法會抗議、國際人權議題施壓等種種方式，向政府要求保障露宿者權益，但都沒有收效，香港還有什麼可以做？」一位在場社工小聲說，可能要特首直選吧。

金其琪引述社工當時說，根據台灣經驗，每到選舉，政府往往比較容易「埋單」；邵家臻聽了，表現得很難過。他說，不知自己下一年是否還能在會上分享，因為他正被港府控告。「結果，今年他真的無法出席，因為已經入獄。」

世界上只有兩種政府，一種用文明態度對待露宿者，一種用冷酷手法對待他們。後者認為「普天之下，莫非王土」，露宿者是蟻蟻或者蟑螂，務必除之而後快；前者則承認，路上的一切，都屬於人民。

對露宿者無情的政府，結果，對所有人都是無情的。▶

Is there any food you hate to eat and tend to avoid them at all costs?

What's your reaction after reading through the list of hated foods?

What do you feel if someone diss your favorite food in front of you?

Well, I don't appreciate what you like, either. shrug

What the hell you know about food appreciation. eye roll

A lot of people probably have a hard time understand why do those homeless people end up on the streets. I should be able to make a better decision if I was in the same situation.

Just like no one like their own food choices being judged. It's ok not able to enjoy the same food, but at least we can respect each others' personal choices.

Instead of being judgmental, how about trying to step in one's shoes to understand the reasons behind those decisions.

There's nothing wrong of being different

Everyone has the emotion needs of being understood and being cared about. That makes one feel matters.

It can also apply to the Homeless people.

They might look different to the majority.
How about put those difference aside. Let's try being open-minded and ready to step into their shoes before judge them. It's the key to start a positive communication.

By listening and feedback without judgement, that's how people start to care about each other...

Are you ready to start a conversation ?

I moved to the United States after I graduated from high school. My older sister had married someone from there, so she also immigrated. Later, when I was on a trip to Taiwan, a friend introduced me to my ex-husband. After we got married, I moved back to Taiwan from Los Angeles and lived in Taipei. Unfortunately, the marriage did not go as I had hoped, and we got divorced.

Right after the divorce, I was depressed and defeated. In just 2 or 3 years, I blew through the 20 million NT I inherited from my father; I traveled the world, ate the best food, bought diamonds, and bought a Mercedes-Benz. Those things are all in the pawnshop now.

Eventually, I didn't have money to pay rent. The landlord evicted me. I didn't know where to go. I saw on TV that many people without homes would go to Taipei Main Station, so I went there to find a place to sleep.

When I started coming to Taipei Main to sleep, people would shoo me away. Then I made a friend, Dashuai, a girl. She told me to sleep next to her. That's how I was finally able to secure a stable place to sleep each night.

Life at Taipei Main: You have to get up at 5:00 AM because the Taipei Main cleaning staff will come at 6:00 AM to clean the whole station. You have to tidy your bags and belongings, putting everything where it's supposed to be.

Many people say that the homeless do not work, but according to what I observed, a large majority of people experiencing homelessness have jobs. About 70% work in construction, distributing flyers, and holding advertisement signs. I also worked in parades and cooked food at funeral homes. Our income mostly comes from these types of jobs.

I even sold my identity. A friend showed me how to allow people to use my identity to buy prepaid phone cards, often used for illegal purposes. One card goes for 200 NT, so I could get 2,000 NT for 10 cards. When I became part of that crowd, I already felt I had nothing to lose, so my sense of morality, responsibility, and any shame I had left eroded over time. Eventually I felt that there was nothing left for me to care about...

At night when you come back to sleep, kind people often deliver supplies, like sesame chicken soup to eat. Want Want, a food manufacturing company, gives out red envelopes on holidays. Nighttime is also when we need to shower; we go to sports centers to do so.

There was a little while when Taipei Main Station was more messy and chaotic. Gang members would fight, so I wouldn't dare sleep there. For that reason, sometimes I would go 228 Park to sleep. I quite like sleeping at 228; you can feed squirrels and little birds bread. However, it was really the least fortunate time to experience homelessness.

上潭馨園成立的時機

A social worker named Yiting from A Clean, Well-lit Place (an NGO next to 228 Park which provides meals, drinks, and activities during the day) referred me to live at Homeless Taiwan's Tanxin Garden. Jia Yu, a social worker at Homeless Taiwan, helped me find a short-term job working in Wanhua. This job was created especially for people who are experiencing homelessness. I held signs at the MRT station with directions to Wanhua tourism spots and answered questions about them. Doing this I earned 500 NT for 4 hours a day. This position was created to provide a little income until a stable job is secured. Then a friend referred me to a dish-washing job, which pays more than holding signs. I continue to do that job today.

Previously when I lived in Homeless Taiwan's Tanxin Garden, I had some lawsuits and debts. The social workers connected me with resources and I slowly resolved these problems. In fact, living there, I got rid of many issues. I consider my life today and my income very stable.

Eventually I wanted to rent a house and ran into difficulties. The landlord was not willing to apply for a rental subsidy for me, then we finally found out that the house was illegally built. The original rent of 8000 NT was reduced to 7500 NT, then the landlord asked me to help with the garbage, which also reduced by rent by 500 NT.

Presently, my work is stable and I'm settled into my living situation. I'm even taking a mobile photography class at a community college now, which I really enjoy.

In terms of my goals or expectations for life moving forward, I'm just hoping to save more money to prepare for my later years!

Where do they shower?

Although some charity organizations provide shower service, It's hard for the working homeless to access as most of them are closed after office hours.

14.8% of them choose to check-in to a hotel room or rent a room for taking a shower.

The reasons not in a shelter

Nearly 80% of them dream to own or rent a place. It shows even most of them live on the street at this moment, what they really want is a place that they can safely stay in.

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. It's important to design and implement a social safety net.

How can I contribute to improve the situation ?

Try to empathize and respect people who are different from yourself

- In US, LGBTQ youth had 2.2 times the risk of reporting homelessness.
- Minorities are more likely to experience homelessness due to social exclusion
- You may share different opinion with others. How about put those difference aside, try to listen without judgment. Don't put a label on him/her so fast.
- Regardless of race, religion, sex, language, political or other opinion, national or social origin, property, birth or the other status. We are all human and deserves every right to be treated equally.

Understand the Issue

- Understand the issue through reading reference materials
- Participate the events
- Be a volunteer
- After understanding the context, maybe you can find a way to best leverage your strength and make a contribution!

Contribute your strengths in a sustainable way

- A simple action in your daily routine
- Be a volunteer
- Leverage your strength
- Donation
- Don't get burned out, contribute your strength in sustainable way

Influence the Policies

- Vote before understanding political campaign
 - Does it make social exclusion worse?
 - Does it hurt labor rights?
 - Does it decrease less affordable housing?
- Only policies can make a structural change to prevent people keep falling out of the social safety net.
