The most valuable thing a early to mid-career professional develops isn't technical skill, it's the ability to communicate, connect, and lead. NexGen is a curated circle built by the Franco-British Chamber of Commerce to develop exactly that.

Each event brings together ambitious early to mid-career year olds from across Franco-British business for a structured experience, part professional development, part real networking, in settings that make both feel natural. Companies who send their rising talent to NexGen are investing in the skills that show up in client meetings, pitches, and boardrooms.

THE PROPOSITION

"Send your rising talent to NexGen. They come back sharper, better connected, and more confident in the room."
